

Quality Enhancement Plan

Congratulations to the Critical Thinking and Critical Reading Teaching Awards Winners 2017-2018

Critical Thinking Awardees

Joel Goodrich	CLASS
Charles Myers	College of Education
Adam Hisel	CLASS
Katherine Nicholas	College of Health Sciences
Shaun Turner	CLASS
Barbara Davis	College of Science
Tom Appleton	CLASS
Michael Ballard	College of Education
Bradley Kraemer	College of Science
Stephanie McSpirit	CLASS
Jerome May	College of Science
Mike Roberson	College of Business and Technology

Critical Reading Awardees

Joel Goodrich	CLASS
Charles Myers	College of Education
Adam Hisel	CLASS
Katherine Nicholas	College of Health Sciences
Shaun Turner	CLASS
Barbara Davis	College of Science
Eileen Shanahan	College of Education
Benjamin Freed	CLASS
Brian Simpkins	College of Justice & Safety
Kevin Rahimzadeh	CLASS
Ronald Dotson	College of Justice & Safety
Lonnie Reppert	College of Health

Go DEEP with the QEP

The Critical Reading DEEP course reviews metacognitive strategies to improve students' critical reading in general and upper-level classes. In this course, you will learn about and practice ways to apprentice students to disciplinary reading. You can work through materials at your own pace!

Find out more here:

<http://studio.eku.edu/deep/critical-reading>

Or, you can contact QEP Co-Directors Lisa Bosley and Jill Parrott at qep@eku.edu.

Critical Reading Professional Learning Communities

This Spring 2018 semester, 8 faculty and academic staff members participated in a QEP Critical Reading PLC. In fall 2018, join your colleagues in developing critical reading pedagogy and related scholarly projects for another semester-long PLC, which will examine the role of reading for learning in our courses, practice metacognitive strategies for active reading, and design critical reading assignments and assessments that can help students read with purpose.