

QEP Newsletter

October 2021

Click on each for more information about the newest and best books on critical reading.

Body text

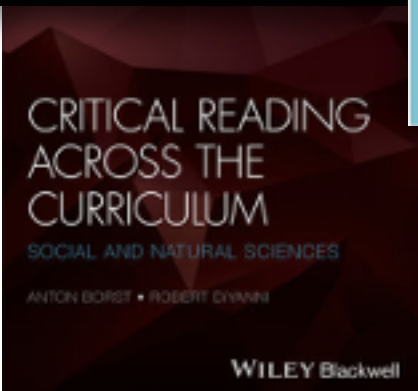

Pedagogy

Critical Approaches to Teaching Literature, Language, Composition, and Culture

Reading and Writing in the Era of Fake News
Guest edited by Ellen C. Carillo and Alice S. Horning

April 2021
Volume 21
Issue 2

QEP Spotlight: Dr. Erin Presley

This is an interview in the QEP Spotlight series with an ECU English professor in a library.

QEP Spotlight: Dr. Vign Chandia

This is an interview in a series of interviews with staff, faculty, administrators, and students across campus promoting the QEP.

QEP Spotlight: Dr. Ananda BSSD

This is an interview in a series of interviews with staff, faculty, administrators, and students across campus promoting the QEP.

QEP Spotlight: Melissa Dickerson

This is an interview in a series of interviews with staff, faculty, administrators, and students across campus promoting the QEP.

QEP Spotlight: ECU Student Adrian Bryant

This is an interview in a series of interviews with staff, faculty, administrators, and students across campus promoting the QEP.

QEP Spotlight: Vice Provost Sherry Robinson

This is an interview in a series of interviews with staff, faculty, and administrators across campus promoting the goals of QEP.

TO LEARN MORE ABOUT HOW THE QEP IMPACTS TEACHING AND LEARNING, READ INTERVIEWS WITH FACULTY, STAFF, AND STUDENTS AT QEP STORIES

Congratulations to Jamie-Marie Miller, who was awarded a QEP Leadership Grant in Spring 2021 for her project "Curriculum and Instruction, Preservice Math Teachers Readyng Themselves for the Classroom by Critically Reading the Research...aka...the 3R's Project."

QEP Leadership Grant projects support critical reading scholarship, research, and pedagogical applications, and promote direct critical reading instruction across disciplines. To date, 17 faculty and staff have received QEP leadership Grants. Read more about all the grant projects here.

Deadline for the final round of QEP Leadership Grant applications is November 1, 2021.

Get more information and apply today!

Many thanks to faculty and staff who participated in critical reading Teaching and Learning Innovation workshops this semester.

Click for recordings of these complete sessions:

- Developing Critical Readers Through Metacognitive Strategies
- Building Vocabulary to Improve Critical Reading and Disciplinary Knowledge
- Motivating Students to Read

Still to come:

- Critical Literacy and Social Action in Children's Literature, October 25
- Media Literacy: Critical Reading on the Internet, November 11
- Drawn Together: Visual and Verbal Consolidation of Discipline-specific Reading Skills, November 19